Rhythm is key for a proper spank, a charming beatnik from the seventies once whispered in my ear, while gently holding me at the wrist. At first, I was sure she was trying to take my pulse, but this simply turned out to be her move.

We soon dispersed, after dispensing a cordial good night greeting and a wink. I tried to conduct myself with some dignity down the alley, but my hosiery runs gave away my predicament. I needed to keep this one. I also needed a hug.
